

Heirloom Egyptian Arabian Horses, 1840-2000

BIBLIOGRAPHY

References contained herein include sources cited in the text of Heirloom Egyptian Arabian Horses, 1840-2000, as well as publications pertaining to Heirloom horses of interest to both the casual reader and serious scholar. This bibliography is not an exhaustive listing due to time and space constraints, but does seek to highlight publications that are rich sources of information on this small but influential group of horses. For further and broader reading, see the comprehensive bibliography in Al Khamsa Arabians II. We have limited annotations to descriptions of subject matter and/or relevance where not evident by the title.

In 1911, he began his long acquaintance with Gertrude Bell, a confidante of Lady Anne Blunt's since 1904, and during the war years, he fought at the side of the Sherifs of Mecca and others whose tribal affiliations are familiar to students of the provenance of Al Khamsa Foundation Horses. Also, Lawrence was familiar with current events in Cairo because he reported to his own chiefs in the British government there.]
